[922023] Tópicos Avançados de Filosofia: Filosofia Moral em Contextos Islâmicos - 1.º Semestre 2023/2024

This seminar introduces students to early philosophical ethical discussions and to different perspectives on moral and political thought in Arabic philosophy. Students will explore major classical sources and philosophical doctrines in the Islamic tradition that constituted the foundation of moral and political philosophy and apprehend the impact of Greek philosophy. The course introduces students to some of the key approaches to the study of ethics and political thought in Islamic context. Students will become familiar with the necessary analytical tools to understand the nature of the study of ethics and political thought in Islamic contexts, which will enable them to develop understanding of primary texts and a general knowledge of key themes and influential figures in Arabic moral and political philosophy.

Assessment requirement:

Analytical Paper on a chosen topic or a question related to the course should be submitted by 7 of December 2023. Paper should be between 2500- 3000 for the MA students and should not exceed 4000 words for the PhD students.
